

Semi-Weekly South Kentuckian.

VOLUME X.

HOPKINSVILLE, CHRISTIAN COUNTY, KY., OCTOBER 16, 1888.

NUMBER 83

ISSUED EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY

MORNING BY

W. A. Wilgus,
PUBLISHER AND PROPRIETOR,

SUBSCRIPTION RATES
One copy, one year, $1.00
One copy, six months, $1.00 Newspapers taken on time and all papers tapped when sent.
One copy free to any one sending yearly cash subscribers.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and power. It is equal to the ordinary kinds, and can act as well in competition with the multitude of new test, short, sharp, plain phosphate powders now in use. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 104 Wall St., N. Y.

BUSINESS CARDS.
S. WALTON FORGY,
LAWYER,
OFFICE OVER PLANTER'S BANK.
Special attention given to all business.
9-1-lyr.

A. P. Campbell,
DENTIST,
HOPKINSVILLE, - KY.
OPERATING A SPECIALTY.
Office over M. Frankel & Sons'.

John Foland, Henry Stiles, John Foland, Jr., FELAND, STATES & FELAND,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW
HOPKINSVILLE, - KY.
Will practice in all the Courts of this Commonwealth.

Drs. Young & Gunn, HOMEOPATHISTS,
HOPKINSVILLE, - KENTUCKY.
OFFICE—Corner Main & 9th Streets.
In addition to general practice, pay special attention to treatment of chronic diseases.
8-10-lyr.

Dr. Wm. M. Fuqua,
PHYSICIAN AND
SURGEON,
Office: Main Street, over National Bank.
4-24-17.

PILES
PITCHING PILES.
SOCIETY—Medical and Interests of the Pile and
the Disease
known as Pile
and Pile Disease.
SWAYNE'S OINTMENT
for piles, hemorrhoids, &c., without any external medicine will cure any case of Tetter Hall
SWAYNE'S OINTMENT
Swain's Remedies, Phila., Boston, Philadelphia, New Orleans, & New York. Dr. J. G. Swaine, M.D., Newark, Del., 50th St., Philadelphia, Pa., 10th St., New Orleans, & 10th St., New York. Your druggist for the best.

J. H. Twyman,
DENTIST,

All work first-class and guaranteed. Charges as low as good work will allow. Extra charges for office, S. W. Cor., 8th and Main Up Stairs.

BETHEL
Female College.
Fall session will open AUGUST 27, 1888, with a full faculty. Special rates to pupils desiring to enter the classes in Elocution, Music, Art and the modern Languages. Call at the College or address

J. W. BUST,

HOPEFIELD, KY.
and Whiskey Head.
He cured at home with most pain. Rock of particular value. Dr. W. W. WOLLEY, M.D., Atlanta, Ga., Office 620 Whitehall St.

OPIUM
New Barber Shop!
M. L. YOUNG, Prop.,
E. NINTH ST. NEAR MAIN.

SHAVING, SHAMPOONING,
HAIR-CUTTING
All done in the Latest Fashion and Safest Guaranteed. Nothing but clean towels.
1-11-87.

About "Canned Goods Poisoning."
Yet, with all the advantages of canned goods, some people abstain from their use, because they think they are unwholesome. This is due to the fact that among the hundred millions of tins annually consumed, there is now and then one hopelessly sealed, thus admitting the air and spoiling the contents. These are easily detected, from the fact that they generally have "awed" or puffed up, or a spirit of mirth, also "incidentally" turned the head on him. He faced about, blushed violently, and stammered a "thank you" in response to her rough smile, and from that moment he was he was fated—Chicago Herald.

CATARRH
A cold in the head is relieved by an application of P. L. S.'s remedy for Catarrh. The comfort to be got from it cannot be equalled. It is the best, pleasant to use.
Price, 20 cents. Sold by druggists or sent by mail.

E. T. HAZELTON, Warren, Pa.

THE CONFEDERATE PRESS,
HOW SOUTHERN PAPERS WERE PRINTED IN WAR TIMES.

Scarcity of Paper and Paper Making Materials—Straits of Publishers of Books and Sheet Music—Song Books, Tracts and Pamphlets—New Novels.

Side by side with the reports of battles and the records of peace commissions, congresses and legislatures, the blurred columns of the Confederate press were wont to teem with domestic recipes for cheap dishes, directions for raising and cultivating various vegetable products, in cluding many much of little use in matters pertaining to war, and yet, though household life, hard by a list of dead and wounded would stand a recipe for tanning dog skins for gloves; while the paragraphs just preceding the closing couplet of the description of a naval engine in the Hampton Roads were directions for the use of honest as a substitute for quinine.

The journals of that day were printed
usually upon the poorest paper, made of
straw and cotton rags, and so brittle that
the slightest touch mutilated it. The
printers had to be very careful in their
composition and left no impression
not only on the face of the sheet, but on
the hands no less than on the mind of the reader. Few fonts of new type found their way into the Confederacy during
the war, and at the end of four years the
faster for publication to a newspaper
and the publisher mainly called on the poet
saying, "Really, Mr. Longfellow, I think it is high time this clunge was unanswered." Again Longfellow, told a story of the way he treated the charges of plagiarism against the Indian poem "Hiawatha," in following closely both the
form and substance of "The Kalevala,"
the national epic of Finland. When they
began to appear he never told a printer
how to print them, but before he left his
publisher the night before to call his attention to them, and suggested that he would
not only face the cost of printing them, but
also the expense of getting them published.
Mr. Longfellow, who had the habit of putting in
a day or two or three times coinciding with me
when I was ill, generally asked him to glance
over this scrap book, and while he was doing
so I would slip my name taken on a train for some other point. It is a good plan.

A Story of Longfellow.
A young New Englander, in those pleasant days when Mr. Longfellow, told a story
of the way he treated the charges of plagiarism against the Indian poem "Hiawatha," in following closely both the
form and substance of "The Kalevala,"
the national epic of Finland. When they
began to appear he never told a printer
how to print them, but before he left his
publisher the night before to call his attention to them, and suggested that he would
not only face the cost of printing them, but
also the expense of getting them published.
Mr. Longfellow, who had the habit of putting in
a day or two or three times coinciding with me
when I was ill, generally asked him to glance
over this scrap book, and while he was doing
so I would slip my name taken on a train for some
other point. It is a good plan.

The journals of that day were printed
usually upon the poorest paper, made of
straw and cotton rags, and so brittle that
the slightest touch mutilated it. The
printers had to be very careful in their
composition and left no impression
not only on the face of the sheet, but on
the hands no less than on the mind of the
reader. Few fonts of new type found
their way into the Confederacy during
the war, and at the end of four years the
faster for publication to a newspaper
and the publisher mainly called on the poet
saying, "Really, Mr. Longfellow, I think it is high time this clunge was unanswered." Again Longfellow, told a story
of the way he treated the charges of
plagiarism against the Indian poem "Hiawatha," in following closely both the
form and substance of "The Kalevala,"
the national epic of Finland. When they
began to appear he never told a printer
how to print them, but before he left his
publisher the night before to call his attention to them, and suggested that he would
not only face the cost of printing them, but
also the expense of getting them published.
Mr. Longfellow, who had the habit of putting in
a day or two or three times coinciding with me
when I was ill, generally asked him to glance
over this scrap book, and while he was doing
so I would slip my name taken on a train for some
other point. It is a good plan.

The journals of that day were printed
usually upon the poorest paper, made of
straw and cotton rags, and so brittle that
the slightest touch mutilated it. The
printers had to be very careful in their
composition and left no impression
not only on the face of the sheet, but on
the hands no less than on the mind of the
reader. Few fonts of new type found
their way into the Confederacy during
the war, and at the end of four years the
faster for publication to a newspaper
and the publisher mainly called on the poet
saying, "Really, Mr. Longfellow, I think
it is high time this clunge was unanswered." Again Longfellow, told a story
of the way he treated the charges of
plagiarism against the Indian poem "Hiawatha," in following closely both the
form and substance of "The Kalevala,"
the national epic of Finland. When they
began to appear he never told a printer
how to print them, but before he left his
publisher the night before to call his attention to them, and suggested that he would
not only face the cost of printing them, but
also the expense of getting them published.
Mr. Longfellow, who had the habit of putting in
a day or two or three times coinciding with me
when I was ill, generally asked him to glance
over this scrap book, and while he was doing
so I would slip my name taken on a train for some
other point. It is a good plan.

The journals of that day were printed
usually upon the poorest paper, made of
straw and cotton rags, and so brittle that
the slightest touch mutilated it. The
printers had to be very careful in their
composition and left no impression
not only on the face of the sheet, but on
the hands no less than on the mind of the
reader. Few fonts of new type found
their way into the Confederacy during
the war, and at the end of four years the
faster for publication to a newspaper
and the publisher mainly called on the poet
saying, "Really, Mr. Longfellow, I think
it is high time this clunge was unanswered." Again Longfellow, told a story
of the way he treated the charges of
plagiarism against the Indian poem "Hiawatha," in following closely both the
form and substance of "The Kalevala,"
the national epic of Finland. When they
began to appear he never told a printer
how to print them, but before he left his
publisher the night before to call his attention to them, and suggested that he would
not only face the cost of printing them, but
also the expense of getting them published.
Mr. Longfellow, who had the habit of putting in
a day or two or three times coinciding with me
when I was ill, generally asked him to glance
over this scrap book, and while he was doing
so I would slip my name taken on a train for some
other point. It is a good plan.

The journals of that day were printed
usually upon the poorest paper, made of
straw and cotton rags, and so brittle that
the slightest touch mutilated it. The
printers had to be very careful in their
composition and left no impression
not only on the face of the sheet, but on
the hands no less than on the mind of the
reader. Few fonts of new type found
their way into the Confederacy during
the war, and at the end of four years the
faster for publication to a newspaper
and the publisher mainly called on the poet
saying, "Really, Mr. Longfellow, I think it is high time this clunge was unanswered." Again Longfellow, told a story
of the way he treated the charges of
plagiarism against the Indian poem "Hiawatha," in following closely both the
form and substance of "The Kalevala,"
the national epic of Finland. When they
began to appear he never told a printer
how to print them, but before he left his
publisher the night before to call his attention to them, and suggested that he would
not only face the cost of printing them, but
also the expense of getting them published.
Mr. Longfellow, who had the habit of putting in
a day or two or three times coinciding with me
when I was ill, generally asked him to glance
over this scrap book, and while he was doing
so I would slip my name taken on a train for some
other point. It is a good plan.

The journals of that day were printed
usually upon the poorest paper, made of
straw and cotton rags, and so brittle that
the slightest touch mutilated it. The
printers had to be very careful in their
composition and left no impression
not only on the face of the sheet, but on
the hands no less than on the mind of the
reader. Few fonts of new type found
their way into the Confederacy during
the war, and at the end of four years the
faster for publication to a newspaper
and the publisher mainly called on the poet
saying, "Really, Mr. Longfellow, I think it is high time this clunge was unanswered." Again Longfellow, told a story
of the way he treated the charges of
plagiarism against the Indian poem "Hiawatha," in following closely both the
form and substance of "The Kalevala,"
the national epic of Finland. When they
began to appear he never told a printer
how to print them, but before he left his
publisher the night before to call his attention to them, and suggested that he would
not only face the cost of printing them, but
also the expense of getting them published.
Mr. Longfellow, who had the habit of putting in
a day or two or three times coinciding with me
when I was ill, generally asked him to glance
over this scrap book, and while he was doing
so I would slip my name taken on a train for some
other point. It is a good plan.

The journals of that day were printed
usually upon the poorest paper, made of
straw and cotton rags, and so brittle that
the slightest touch mutilated it. The
printers had to be very careful in their
composition and left no impression
not only on the face of the sheet, but on
the hands no less than on the mind of the
reader. Few fonts of new type found
their way into the Confederacy during
the war, and at the end of four years the
faster for publication to a newspaper
and the publisher mainly called on the poet
saying, "Really, Mr. Longfellow, I think it is high time this clunge was unanswered." Again Longfellow, told a story
of the way he treated the charges of
plagiarism against the Indian poem "Hiawatha," in following closely both the
form and substance of "The Kalevala,"
the national epic of Finland. When they
began to appear he never told a printer
how to print them, but before he left his
publisher the night before to call his attention to them, and suggested that he would
not only face the cost of printing them, but
also the expense of getting them published.
Mr. Longfellow, who had the habit of putting in
a day or two or three times coinciding with me
when I was ill, generally asked him to glance
over this scrap book, and while he was doing
so I would slip my name taken on a train for some
other point. It is a good plan.

The journals of that day were printed
usually upon the poorest paper, made of
straw and cotton rags, and so brittle that
the slightest touch mutilated it. The
printers had to be very careful in their
composition and left no impression
not only on the face of the sheet, but on
the hands no less than on the mind of the
reader. Few fonts of new type found
their way into the Confederacy during
the war, and at the end of four years the
faster for publication to a newspaper
and the publisher mainly called on the poet
saying, "Really, Mr. Longfellow, I think it is high time this clunge was unanswered." Again Longfellow, told a story
of the way he treated the charges of
plagiarism against the Indian poem "Hiawatha," in following closely both the
form and substance of "The Kalevala,"
the national epic of Finland. When they
began to appear he never told a printer
how to print them, but before he left his
publisher the night before to call his attention to them, and suggested that he would
not only face the cost of printing them, but
also the expense of getting them published.
Mr. Longfellow, who had the habit of putting in
a day or two or three times coinciding with me
when I was ill, generally asked him to glance
over this scrap book, and while he was doing
so I would slip my name taken on a train for some
other point. It is a good plan.

The journals of that day were printed
usually upon the poorest paper, made of
straw and cotton rags, and so brittle that
the slightest touch mutilated it. The
printers had to be very careful in their
composition and left no impression
not only on the face of the sheet, but on
the hands no less than on the mind of the
reader. Few fonts of new type found
their way into the Confederacy during
the war, and at the end of four years the
faster for publication to a newspaper
and the publisher mainly called on the poet
saying, "Really, Mr. Longfellow, I think it is high time this clunge was unanswered." Again Longfellow, told a story
of the way he treated the charges of
plagiarism against the Indian poem "Hiawatha," in following closely both the
form and substance of "The Kalevala,"
the national epic of Finland. When they
began to appear he never told a printer
how to print them, but before he left his
publisher the night before to call his attention to them, and suggested that he would
not only face the cost of printing them, but
also the expense of getting them published.
Mr. Longfellow, who had the habit of putting in
a day or two or three times coinciding with me
when I was ill, generally asked him to glance
over this scrap book, and while he was doing
so I would slip my name taken on a train for some
other point. It is a good plan.

The journals of that day were printed
usually upon the poorest paper, made of
straw and cotton rags, and so brittle that
the slightest touch mutilated it. The
printers had to be very careful in their
composition and left no impression
not only on the face of the sheet, but on
the hands no less than on the mind of the
reader. Few fonts of new type found
their way into the Confederacy during
the war, and at the end of four years the
faster for publication to a newspaper
and the publisher mainly called on the poet
saying, "Really, Mr. Longfellow, I think it is high time this clunge was unanswered." Again Longfellow, told a story
of the way he treated the charges of
plagiarism against the Indian poem "Hiawatha," in following closely both the
form and substance of "The Kalevala,"
the national epic of Finland. When they
began to appear he never told a printer
how to print them, but before he left his
publisher the night before to call his attention to them, and suggested that he would
not only face the cost of printing them, but
also the expense of getting them published.
Mr. Longfellow, who had the habit of putting in
a day or two or three times coinciding with me
when I was ill, generally asked him to glance
over this scrap book, and while he was doing
so I would slip my name taken on a train for some
other point. It is a good plan.

The journals of that day were printed
usually upon the poorest paper, made of
straw and cotton rags, and so brittle that
the slightest touch mutilated it. The
printers had to be very careful in their
composition and left no impression
not only on the face of the sheet, but on
the hands no less than on the mind of the
reader. Few fonts of new type found
their way into the Confederacy during
the war, and at the end of four years the
faster for publication to a newspaper
and the publisher mainly called on the poet
saying, "Really, Mr. Longfellow, I think it is high time this clunge was unanswered." Again Longfellow, told a story
of the way he treated the charges of
plagiarism against the Indian poem "Hiawatha," in following closely both the
form and substance of "The Kalevala,"
the national epic of Finland. When they
began to appear he never told a printer
how to print them, but before he left his
publisher the night before to call his attention to them, and suggested that he would
not only face the cost of printing them, but
also the expense of getting them published.
Mr. Longfellow, who had the habit of putting in
a day or two or three times coinciding with me
when I was ill, generally asked him to glance
over this scrap book, and while he was doing
so I would slip my name taken on a train for some
other point. It is a good plan.

The journals of that day were printed
usually upon the poorest paper, made of
straw and cotton rags, and so brittle that
the slightest touch mutilated it. The
printers had to be very careful in their
composition and left no impression
not only on the face of the sheet, but on
the hands no less than on the mind of the
reader. Few fonts of new type found
their way into the Confederacy during
the war, and at the end of four years the
faster for publication to a newspaper
and the publisher mainly called on the poet
saying, "Really, Mr. Longfellow, I think it is high time this clunge was unanswered." Again Longfellow, told a story
of the way he treated the charges of
plagiarism against the Indian poem "Hiawatha," in following closely both the
form and substance of "The Kalevala,"
the national epic of Finland. When they
began to appear he never told a printer
how to print them, but before he left his
publisher the night before to call his attention to them, and suggested that he would
not only face the cost of printing them, but
also the expense of getting them published.
Mr. Longfellow, who had the habit of putting in
a day or two or three times coinciding with me
when I was ill, generally asked him to glance
over this scrap book, and while he was doing
so I would slip my name taken on a train for some
other point. It is a good plan.

The journals of that day were printed
usually upon the poorest paper, made of
straw and cotton rags, and so brittle that
the slightest touch mutilated it. The
printers had to be very careful in their
composition and left no impression
not only on the face of the sheet, but on
the hands no less than on the mind of the
reader. Few fonts of new type found
their way into the Confederacy during
the war, and at the end of four years the
faster for publication to a newspaper
and the publisher mainly called on the poet
saying, "Really, Mr. Longfellow, I think it is high time this clunge was unanswered." Again Longfellow, told a story
of the way he treated the charges of
plagiarism against the Indian poem "Hiawatha," in following closely both the
form and substance of "The Kalevala,"
the national epic of Finland. When they
began to appear he never told a printer
how to print them, but before he left his
publisher the night before to call his attention to them, and suggested that he would
not only face the cost of printing them, but

SEMIWEEKLY SOUTH KENTUCKIAN

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1888.
W. A. WILSON, - - Editor and Proprietor.
ALLAN M. WALLIS, - - Associate Editor.
T. E. BARTLEY, - - Business Manager.

Chicago is now in the midst of a big street car strike.

If half the election bets reported in the papers prove to be true, nearly all the money in the country will change hands early in November.

Mr. Headley Boyd, who has been editing the Clarksville Chronicle for sometime past, has resigned and accepted a position on the Daily Progress, just started in Clarksville by Living Galves.

Gov. Hill of New York, is making his weight felt in Indiana. Everywhere he speaks his audiences are large and enthusiastic. It is conceded by the Republicans that the State will go Democratic.

The Owensboro Messenger, always equal to the occasion, came out with a mammoth edition Thursday. It was finely illustrated and showed up Owensboro's interests with a vim. The Messenger is truly a metropolitan journal.

President Arthur recommended a tariff reduction of 20 per cent. and he died in the odor of sanctity in the Republican household. The Mills bill authorizes a reduction of 7 per cent. and it is denounced as a rebel free trader.—Times.

The Owensboro Inquirer thinks the Republicans of this district ought to have an undying affection for Mr. Jolly. He is always ready to fight their battles for them, even when there is no hope of victory, just to hold the party together.

Judge Davenport, of Kansas City, in a case brought before him, has decided that the State of Missouri a woman can wear trousers if she wants to, and it is nobody's business. She has the law on her side and it is simply a matter of taste and ability.

The Louisville Commercial's principle objection to the re-election of Garfield is because that paper alleges that he is an "elephant." If the Commercial sticks to the Republican candidate, Willson, it will have a bigger elephant on its hands for the time being than is Garfield.—Bowling Green Times.

A new Democratic newspaper, the Pilot, owned and edited by colored men at Evansville, Ind., in its first issue claims that no less than four thousand Democrats voted will be cast in Indiana this year by colored men. This is a pretty good start and the Pilot should keep up its good work of conversion.

There is still to be another paper in Clarksville published by Mr. M. V. Ingram, called the "Clarksville Cultivator, Farmer's Organizer and Commercial Guide." If there is anything in a thriving city being judged by the number of newspapers, Clarksville will surely go up ahead at least for the present.

The actors of today are not any means the bankrupt class that they were portrayed by the old-time writers. William Warren, who died recently in Boston, left an estate of $300,000. Booth is rich. Barrett is rich. Lotis is worth a million. Henry Irving is a man of large wealth. Stuart Robson has a comfortable fortune, and many others rank among the millionaires.

Dilger's counsel made a motion for a change of venue before Judge Jackson, of the Louisville Circuit Court, but the wise Judge overruled the motion, believing that the police murderer can get justice at the hands of a Louisville jury. Judge Jackson is a level-headed man, and if Dilger gets justice the hangman will have another job.

Capt. Wm. J. Stone was nominated without opposition in the First District for Congress. This is as it should be for Bill Stone has filed his seat with credit to himself and to his district and deserves to be sent back so long as he looks after the interests of his constituents as he has in the past.

It turns out, as usual in such cases that the sums of money alleged to have been contributed for campaign purposes, were greatly exaggerated. Mr. Cleveland did not give $10,000. Senator T. S. of Ohio, gave but $5,000 instead of $25,000 and Mr. Bayard but $1,000 in place of $10,000. There is more lying done when contributions of money are involved than in almost anything else.

Suppose your wife had gone to a store and expended five dollars for goods, and as she departed with her bundles a government tax-gatherer, wearing a badge marked "Protective tariff" tax-gatherer," stopped her at the door and demanded $2.35, or 47 per cent. of the amount of her purchase, and on her refusal to pay this additional sum, the agent had confiscated the goods. Do you think you would have hunted him up and invited him to dinner? That same individual stands by the side of your wife whenever she enters a store, and for every dollar she expends she gets 43 cents worth of goods, and this tax-gatherer gets 47 cents for protection. He is invisible, but gets in his work all the same, as would the man you invited to dinner. Elect Harrison and Morton and adopt the Republican protection policy, and when your wife goes to the store with a dollar she will be lucky to get home with a bunch of tape or a paper of pins.—Capital.

WORSE THAN ASHLABULA.
NEARLY 60 LIVES LOST AND OVER 40
PEOPLE MAIMED BY THE CARE-LESSNESS OF RAILROAD MEN.

The careless railroad man got in his work at Mud Run, Pennsylvania, on the Lehigh Valley railroad, on the night of the 10th inst., at 10 o'clock. There were nearly six thousand Lackawanna and Luzerne excursionists in Mud Run and the returning trains were in several sections, there being seventy-eight cars in all. It appears that the third section of the train was standing a few hundred yards from Mud Run waiting for the two preceding sections to get far enough for a start. Suddenly passengers on the platform of the rear car saw gleaming in the darkness the head-light of the fourth section coming quickly toward them, and several of them jumped at once from the train and saved their lives. Those inside the cars, totally unconscious of the awful fate awaiting them, were laughing and chatting, talking over the events of the day, thinking of their loved ones at home waiting their return, and planning for the coming day—never dreaming that there would be no tomorrow for some of them, that some of them were in an instant to solve the problem of their future life, when suddenly there was an awful crash, and laughter and hilarity in the twinkling of an eye was changed into the dying moan and the cry of agony. The approaching train had run into the rear of the third section, the engine plunging its full length into the mass of humanity. It is said that the shock was so great that it actually drove the rear car through the next one for two-thirds its length. The loss of life is estimated at not less than 60, and 40 wounded. The sufferings of the wounded was indescribable, while the suspense of the relatives at home as to the fate of the dear ones away, after hearing of the terrible calamity, and not being able to learn particulars, was almost if not equal to that of the unfortunate.

The scene about the wreck was such as no words can describe. Men, women and children were found pinned in their seats, dead. The cries of suffering and calls for help were heard on every hand, while the noise of the escaping steam and the general consternation of the living made those who were using every exertion to extricate the mass of humanity shudder with horror. The few houses around were converted into hospitals, and all medical aid available was quickly summoned from a distance. To think that the loss of so much suffering should lay at the door of some careless person or persons aroused one to indignation, and as such carelessness is criminal everybody would be glad if the cause could be traced home and the guilty one quickly punished to the full extent of the law, if not further. As to whether the train dispatcher, the enginer, or both of them are to blame has not been yet fully developed. But we suppose that this, like all great railroad disasters, will meet with a great deal of investigation and very little justice he held out.

EXCHANGE SPARKS.

Blaine's throat is getting better, and so the Democratic prospects are looking brighter.—Post.

Duluth is really becoming a city. She is already nasty enough to have an epidemic of typhoid fever.—Courier Journal.

Congress will have to adjourn pretty soon or will not be enough of its members left in Washington to adjourn it.—News.

The few citizens of New York who have not yet been nominated for mayor are beginning to feel that a personal slight is intended them.—News.

One of the most important facts elicited by the discussion of the present campaign is that Anakee Dickenson is not quite forty-six years old.—Telegram.

President Cleveland is said to expectorate on his bat with the calm indifference of a man who knows that the country is wishing him good luck.—Omaha Herald.

An exchange speaks of a lawyer's conduct in loaning money to a burglar as something very peculiar, but old Skinnedalive says he thinks it merely an exchange of professional courtesies.

MR. BLAINE'S WEAK POINT.

The weakest point made by Mr. Blaine in the present campaign—and he gave it special prominence at Indianapolis—is that our war tariff tends to render us independent of the markets of the world in the disposal of our food products.

His contention is that but for the tariff our home market for food products would be utterly destroyed, and thus we would be rendered dependent on Europe for the sale of those as we were previous to its enactment.

He adds to this the anomalous allegation, contradictory of the above, that it is not the tariff, but the vast imports of food products of late years into Europe from Russia, Australia, India and South America, most of these the results of underpaid labor, which has caused the decline in the prices of western farm products.

Yet what is this but an admission that the protection panacea has utterly failed in the intention of rendering our farmers independent of European market prices?

In refutation of Mr. Blaine's position—that the tariff renders us independent of foreign markets—it is

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10, 1888.—Senator Coke, in opposing the bill just passed by the Senate, to pay the widow of Chief Justice Waite $3,750, said that he believed in equality before the law of all the people of the United States; that one good respectable widow was exactly the same before the law as another. There were hundreds of thousands of good widows in the United States, who were as much entitled, in law, in equity and of right, to a donation from Congress as the estimable lady for whose relief the bill was pending. Senator Harry in opposing the bill, argued that every dollar due to the late Chief Justice had been paid to himself or his widow, and that the sum proposed to be paid was simply a donation or gift. If the Chief Justice had not been able to save money out of his salary of $10,000 a year, he must have lived in a very extravagant way.

Judge Thurman, who was here this week to argue the Government side of the Telephone cases before the Supreme Court, was the recipient of much attention; he was the guest of Mr. Cleveland at Oak View for two days, and was compelled to hold a levee everywhere he went. The old Roman has a warm spot in the hearts of the people here, as well as elsewhere, and when he is elected Vice-President, he surely will be on the 6th of November, nowhere will there be more sincere rejoicing in Washington.

Speaker Carlisle will address a democratic meeting in Baltimore next Thursday.

The republican members of Senator Hale's smelting committee, which has been nosing around for some months trying to find some violations of the Civil Service law, have made their report. It consists of a rehash of a lot of exploded newspaper charges. The democratic members of the committee have not yet submitted their report.

The House, in response to a recommendation from Acting Secretary Thompson of the Treasury, has passed a bill appropriating $50,000 to carry out the provisions of the Chinese exclusion bill.

Representative Burns, speaking on the General deficiency bill, which has at last become a law, stated a rockribbed truth when he said that the people had turned the republican party out of power, not on account of extravagance in appropriations, but because of the waste and want of integrity in the expenditure of the money.

The republican Senators are rehashing the old worn out "cheatnests" that did duty in the House during the discussion of the Mills bill. That they are only killing time in the hope of making political capital, was fully shown on the day that their tariff bill was introduced. Senator Harris proposed that the debate on the bill should be limited to ten days but Senator Allison, who is in charge of the republican bill, declined most positively to agree to limit the debate. Does that look like the republicans really want to pass the tariff bill which they have introduced? I think not. And here is another straw: Nearly every republican Senator has stated within the last three days, that if the House would pass a resolution to take a recess until after the election, or for an adjournment, they would vote for it in the Senate. They are perfectly willing to adjourn without passing their tariff bill, provided that they can go upon the stump and say that the House forced them to adjourn. This House has so far refused to do, and if the advice of the longest-headed men in the party is followed, they will continue to refuse to the end of the chapter to refuse to the end of the chapter.

The House adjourned from Wednesday until to-day, and it will not be surprising if it continues to adjourn over three days at a time, the limit of the law, until the Senate takes some action looking towards a recess or adjournment.

The House adjourned from Wednesday until to-day, and it will not be surprising if it continues to adjourn over three days at a time, the limit of the law, until the Senate takes some action looking towards a recess or adjournment.

The efforts to furnish the people with a good local paper seems to be appreciated by our readers. Every day we receive words of encouragement and satisfaction. We intend to keep the SOUTH KENTUCKIAN at its present standard, and anything our friends can do in the way of extending our circulation will be appreciated. We put this question squarely to all: Have you ever taken a paper that gave you as much local news as you now get in the SOUTH KENTUCKIAN?

Our efforts to furnish the people with a good local paper seems to be appreciated by our readers. Every day we receive words of encouragement and satisfaction. We intend to keep the SOUTH KENTUCKIAN at its present standard, and anything our friends can do in the way of extending our circulation will be appreciated. We put this question squarely to all: Have you ever taken a paper that gave you as much local news as you now get in the SOUTH KENTUCKIAN?

The bill changing the law as to the date when electoral votes must be delivered at the capital, to the fourth Monday in January, has been passed by both Houses, and is now in the hands of the President.

The bill changing the law as to the date when electoral votes must be delivered at the capital, to the fourth Monday in January, has been passed by both Houses, and is now in the hands of the President.

Chief Justice Fuller, who for the first time presided over the Supreme Court this week, has made a very good impression.

His contention is that but for the tariff our home market for food products would be utterly destroyed, and thus we would be rendered dependent on Europe for the sale of those as we were previous to its enactment.

He adds to this the anomalous allegation, contradictory of the above, that it is not the tariff, but the vast imports of food products of late years into Europe from Russia, Australia, India and South America, most of these the results of underpaid labor, which has caused the decline in the prices of western farm products.

Yet what is this but an admission that the protection panacea has utterly failed in the intention of rendering our farmers independent of European market prices?

In refutation of Mr. Blaine's position—that the tariff renders us independent of foreign markets—it is simply necessary to show that, whereas in 1860 we exported but $15,271,850 in value of food products, in 1887 we exported $245,000,318 worth.

Meanwhile, before our farmers were compelled to meet Indian and Russian competition, their value rose in round numbers to $122,000,000 worth in 1881.

Speaking of these exports, Mr. Edward Atkinson, in the October Fortune, says: "Had it not been possible to make this exchange, or to export the excess of our corn, wheat, dairy products, cotton and oil, this excess could not have been consumed at home, as the remanufacture met the demand of the most abundant and increasing consumption."

Furthermore, when Mr. Blaine asserts that, even in the face of the present tariff, our farmers are compelled to compete with Indian labor, working for 8 cents a day, he gives away his whole case.

No man, whether he can read himself or not, wants his children to grow up in ignorance. The cheapest literature, and at the same time the most useful, that can be introduced in any home is the newspaper. If a man will buy a dictionary and a Bible and take a newspaper and have regular hours for studying the Bible and reading his newspaper there is not the least danger of his boys making bad citizens or his girls making mean wives. The price of the SOUTH KENTUCKIAN is only $2 a year, two issues every week. Anybody can afford to take it.

TOBACCO NEWS.

HOPKINSVILLE TOBACCO MARKET.

(Reported by ASTORIAN & CO., of the Central Warehouse.)

No auction sales last week. The inspections were very light and but few hogheads offered privately. The general disposition of both buyers and sellers is to hold still and await developments. A few crops of new tobacco have been offered by farmers "on the stalk," but we hear of no sales yet—the price not having been established. We look for no activity in the market for the next 30 or 40 days.

Hornblower, Hallums & Co., of the Grange Warehouse, Clarksville, sold for the week ending October 11, 1888, 172 hogheads as follows:

120 Hhds. Leaf, $1.00 to $12.50.
41 Hhds. Lugs, $1.00 to $7.50.

The Farmers Home Journal advises holders of dark tobacco to prize their crop and roll it away in a corner of the barn until it shall be worth something. The reports of damage by frost are indefinite, but come only from spots and patches of the country, and the total damage is probably insignificant.

CLARKSVILLE TOBACCO MARKET.

(Democrat)

Sales are still moderate in volume, and will foot up for the week about 350 hds. The market was fairly firm without new features. The quality runs low in grade as is usual at this season of the year. The new crop went into the home free of frost which still holds off, and a full third of the crop could have stayed longer to great advantage of quality and value. We quote.

Common lugs..... 1.75@ 2.50
Medium lugs..... 2.75@ 3.50
Goods lugs..... 3.75@ 4.50
Common leaf..... 3.75@ 5.75
Medium leaf..... 6.50@ 8.00
Good leaf..... 8.50@ 10.50
Fine leaf..... nominal.

Our efforts to furnish the people with a good local paper seems to be appreciated by our readers. Every day we receive words of encouragement and satisfaction. We intend to keep the SOUTH KENTUCKIAN at its present standard, and anything our friends can do in the way of extending our circulation will be appreciated. We put this question squarely to all: Have you ever taken a paper that gave you as much local news as you now get in the SOUTH KENTUCKIAN?

The bill changing the law as to the date when electoral votes must be delivered at the capital, to the fourth Monday in January, has been passed by both Houses, and is now in the hands of the President.

Chief Justice Fuller, who for the first time presided over the Supreme Court this week, has made a very good impression.

His contention is that but for the tariff our home market for food products would be utterly destroyed, and thus we would be rendered dependent on Europe for the sale of those as we were previous to its enactment.

He adds to this the anomalous allegation, contradictory of the above, that it is not the tariff, but the vast imports of food products of late years into Europe from Russia, Australia, India and South America, most of these the results of underpaid labor, which has caused the decline in the prices of western farm products.

Yet what is this but an admission that the protection panacea has utterly failed in the intention of rendering our farmers independent of European market prices?

In refutation of Mr. Blaine's position—that the tariff renders us independent of foreign markets—it is simply necessary to show that, whereas in 1860 we exported but $15,271,850 in value of food products, in 1887 we exported $245,000,318 worth.

Meanwhile, before our farmers were compelled to meet Indian and Russian competition, their value rose in round numbers to $122,000,000 worth in 1881.

Speaking of these exports, Mr. Edward Atkinson, in the October Fortune, says: "Had it not been possible to make this exchange, or to export the excess of our corn, wheat, dairy products, cotton and oil, this excess could not have been consumed at home, as the remanufacture met the demand of the most abundant and increasing consumption."

Furthermore, when Mr. Blaine asserts that, even in the face of the present tariff, our farmers are compelled to compete with Indian labor, working for 8 cents a day, he gives away his whole case.

No man, whether he can read himself or not, wants his children to grow up in ignorance. The cheapest literature, and at the same time the most useful, that can be introduced in any home is the newspaper. If a man will buy a dictionary and a Bible and take a newspaper and have regular hours for studying the Bible and reading his newspaper there is not the least danger of his boys making bad citizens or his girls making mean wives. The price of the SOUTH KENTUCKIAN is only $2 a year, two issues every week. Anybody can afford to take it.

$8.50. — $8.50. — $8.50.

SEMI-WEEKLY SOUTH KENTUCKIAN

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1888.

TABLE FOR TRAINS.

L. & N. Railroad.	HERE AND THERE.
DEPART. NORTH—12:30 A. M. 10:15 P. M. ARRIVE FROM SOUTH—10:30 A. M.; 1:45, 10:20 P. M. ARRIVE FROM NORTH—4:30 A. M.; 1:45, 10:20 P. M. W. W. Alexander Agent, Hopkinsville, Ky.	Louie, Garnett & Co. insures tobacco barns.
POST OFFICE—Main Street, bet. 5th and 6th.	Coal went up two cents on the bushel last week.
Open for letters, stamp—T. A. M. to 8 P. M. " " money orders—A. M. to 8 P. M. " " delivery, Sundays—5 to 9 P. M.	W. A. Wilgus' dwelling house is for rent for 1889.
SOUTHERN EXPRESS OFFICE, Seventh St., near Main.	There were services at all the churches last Sunday.
Open 8 A. M. to 4 P. M.	J. F. Pyle is slowly recovering from a month's sickness.
TELEGRAPH OFFICES.	Mrs. A. W. Pyle, who was quite sick last week, is much better.
WESTERN UNION—Up stairs corner Main and Shattocks. Mrs. Handie and Miss Park, operators.	The Hayes-Davis Company is playing week's engagement in Clarksville.
For Louisville, Chesapeake & Ohio Route.	Thirty-six tickets were sold at this point for the excursion to Evansville last Saturday.
No. 8. Mr. Hopkinsville, J. N., 9:30 A. M. Arr. Nortonville, 10:35 P. M.; 10:37 A. M. Arr. Nortonville, C. & O., 1:30 A. M.; 7:47 A. M. Arr. Louisville, 1:30 A. M.; 2:15 P. M. Arr. Evansville, 2:30 P. M.; 4:30 P. M. Arr. Clarksville, 4:30 P. M.; 7:45 P. M. Arr. Memphis, 6:30 P. M.; 7:45 P. M. Arr. Vicksburg, 10:30 A. M.; 8:45 P. M. Arr. New Orleans, 2:30 A. M.; 8:00 P. M. No. 9. Mr. Hopkinsville, J. N., 9:30 A. M. Arr. Nortonville, C. & O., 10:35 P. M.; 10:37 A. M. Arr. Nortonville, C. & O., 1:30 A. M.; 7:48 A. M. Arr. Louisville, 1:30 A. M.; 2:15 P. M. Arr. Evansville, 2:30 P. M.; 4:30 P. M. Arr. Clarksville, 4:30 P. M.; 7:45 P. M. Arr. Memphis, 6:30 P. M.; 7:45 P. M. Arr. Vicksburg, 10:30 A. M.; 8:45 P. M. Arr. New Orleans, 2:30 A. M.; 8:00 P. M.	The Court of Claims met yesterday and will be in session to-day, and probably to-morrow.
A couple of negro boys engaged in a fist fight at the depot Saturday, and one of them was badly used up.	It is to be hoped that the City Council will take the matter in hand. We know of some people who would be very grateful to the City Council if it would take the matter under advisement and act upon it.
Joe W. Cooper has returned from the hospital in Louisville, much improved. He is now in Trigg county.	We have in our office a queer looking specimen of the vegetable kingdom. It is a sweet potato, raised in the garden of Mr. J. P. Prout, of this city. It has the appearance of a rat as it rests with its legs tucked under it, and looks as much like a terrapin, only the tail is "bowed" and it is a little too long. It looks equally as much like a swan, with no head. The skin is rough and has indentations and streaks which divide it up into uneven sections. We want it distinctly understood that it has not the name of any of the Presidential candidates on it. Not one person in a hundred would suppose it was a sweet potato at first sight. We are using it as a paper weight, and the curious can see it at any time. Don't cry "Rats!" but come and see it you want to.
A centenarian by the name of Millie Wallace was buried last Saturday. She is said to have been 103 years old.	ARTHUR STOVES ARE COMING MORE AND MORE INTO GENERAL USE EVERY YEAR. THE LOCAL DEALERS HAVE ALREADY HAD AN UNUSUAL RUN IN BASE BURNERS.
Thos. Ryan, a conductor on one of the local freights, while unloading a grain drill Saturday had one of his hands badly mashed.	B. W. Kennedy increased his yield of wheat last season 15 bushels per acre by the use of National fertilizer.
Prepare for a long, cold winter. A thick shock on the corn ear is about as good a prognosticator as the goose bone of the Louisville Times, or anything else.	A protracted meeting was commenced at Old Salem Church, in this county, last Sunday. The meeting will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Forgy and Lackhardt.
The show windows of the corner store room of M. Frankel & Sons presented a beautiful appearance. The dressing is the work of Mrs. Holland and is very artistic.	The show windows of the corner store room of M. Frankel & Sons presented a beautiful appearance. The dressing is the work of Mrs. Holland and is very artistic.
A. H. Wilson, P. J. Tate, Fred Schmidt, Jackson Tate, left yesterday for a gathering "between the rivers." The crop of nuts of all kinds is very heavy this year.	The many friends of Dr. Fairleigh will regret to learn that his condition is very critical, and that there is no hope of his recovery. In fact, his death may be expected at anytime.
Douglas Grange Hall, near Bell, will be dedicated next Saturday. A big time is in store for all who attend. A splendid dinner will be served and every body is invited.	There seems to be a general understanding that the law enacted by the last Legislature in fixing a day for the re-submission of the prohibition question to the courts named the 10th day of March, which will come on Sunday. Such is not the case. A gentleman who lives in Frankfort, at the request of a friend here, went to the Capitol and examined the bill and wrote back that the bill says it shall take place on the "first Saturday in the month of March, 1889."
Jas. A. Boyd, Kelly Station, says he incised his wheat crop 14 bushels per acre by the use of wheat fertilizer bought of Dr. A. Tandy, yet the croaker says there is no money in farming.	The Chautauqua of this city desire to express their gratification at the marked success of Dr. Benson's lecture. As "nothing succeeds like success" they are beginning to feel confident the lecture course will be highly appreciated and patronized by all the intelligent and cultivated people of our city. The Hon. Samuel Phelps Leland, is the learned orator whose valuable services have been secured for next month's lecture.
Don't forget next Saturday. Several parties have been securing contributions during the past week for raising a pole, and thus far have been very successful. It is safe to say that the necessary amount will be raised.	Mr. P. A. Cushman brought to this office last week, four of the largest apples we have ever seen. They are of the "Kentucky King" variety, and are beauties. The four weighed just 3 pounds and nine ounces. Who can beat it?
The pavement in front of the confectionery at the corner of Railroad and Ninth streets is in a wretched condition, but it is hoped that our efficient street superintendent, John A. Twyman, will soon have it repaired.	The Chautauqua of this city desire to express their gratification at the marked success of Dr. Benson's lecture. As "nothing succeeds like success" they are beginning to feel confident the lecture course will be highly appreciated and patronized by all the intelligent and cultivated people of our city. The Hon. Samuel Phelps Leland, is the learned orator whose valuable services have been secured for next month's lecture.
Mr. W. S. Wilson, of Belleville, Illinois, returned home last Sunday. Mr. Wilson is a brother-in-law of Dr. R. M. Fairleigh, and is Superintendent of the Cairo Short Line Railroad. Mrs. Wilson is still at the bedside of her brother.	Card are out announcing the marriage of Mr. Right D. Vance to Miss Anna Beattie, on the 31st of this month at the First Presbyterian Church in Henderson. Bob let me to believe at one time he was going to be related to Hopkinsville, but nevertheless we wish him in advance all the happiness that could possibly be shared by a rising young Democrat.
Dr. E. R. Cullom, of Gracey, has been employed by the L. & N. Company as surgeon. He will operate between Clarksville and Princeton. This will not interfere with his home practice at all. The Doctor is an excellent physician as well as first class surgeon and the company has done well in securing his services.	The Democrats in and around Fairview had a big time Saturday. Hon. John S. Ives, who was expected to be present and address the crowd failed to fill his appointment but his place was filled by local talent. Mr. H. A. Neals was also one of the speakers, but his remarks were about the new railroad.
Newton Beer's "Loat in London" at the opera house Thursday night was truly a great production, and the small house that witnessed the play was enthusiastic throughout the performance. Mr. Beer himself is a fine actor, and the specialty features were the best we have seen for a long time.	The Wabash Western R. R. has inaugurated a through Pullman sleeping car service, via Kansas City and the Union Pacific between St. Louis and Denver and Cheyenne, leaving St. Louis daily 8:30 p. m., arriving Denver second morning 7 o'clock, Cheyenne second evening 2:30. Where connection is made with the "Fast Western Flyer" for San Francisco, Los Angeles and Portland, Oregon only one change of cars between St. Louis and those cities. This makes the shortest line and fastest schedule to Pacific Coast.
Herbert McPherson has returned from Hopkinsville and will go to work Monday for E. Nahm & Co. He is polite, courteous, obliging and one of the best salesmen in the city. He knows all the boys and will command a big trade, and Messrs. Nahm & Co. are to be congratulated upon securing his services.—Bowling Green Times.	FOR TICKETS, SLEEPING CAR RESERVATIONS &c., ADDRESS H. H. Fowler, T. P. A., N. W. Cor. 4th and Main Sts., Louisville, Ky.
Isiah Jonas and Arthur Banks, two of the best barbers in the city, have bought out the shop of James Hartgrave opposite the Express office, on Seventh street, and will be glad to have their old customers and the shaving public call on them. These two barbers are as well known that it is useless for us to say anything for them. They are not only very expert with the razor and scissars but always treat gentlemen as they should be treated.	A Contribution.
The Barefoot Of Combinations.	The railroad agent at this point will sell tickets on the 11th and 18th days of this month to St. Louis for $5.75 for the round trip. Tickets are good for five days. All wanting to go to the St. Louis exposition should avail themselves of the low rate, probably the lowest that will ever be given,

OUR NEIGHBORS.

Louie, Garnett & Co. insures tobacco barns.

Coal went up two cents on the bushel last week.

W. A. Wilgus' dwelling house is for rent for 1889.

There were services at all the churches last Sunday.

J. F. Pyle is slowly recovering from a month's sickness.

Mrs. A. W. Pyle, who was quite sick last week, is much better.

The Hayes-Davis Company is playing week's engagement in Clarksville.

Thirty-six tickets were sold at this point for the excursion to Evansville last Saturday.

The Court of Claims met yesterday and will be in session to-day, and probably to-morrow.

A couple of negro boys engaged in a fist fight at the depot Saturday, and one of them was badly used up.

Joe W. Cooper has returned from the hospital in Louisville, much improved. He is now in Trigg county.

A centenarian by the name of Millie Wallace was buried last Saturday. She is said to have been 103 years old.

Thos. Ryan, a conductor on one of the local freights, while unloading a grain drill Saturday had one of his hands badly mashed.

Anthracite stoves are coming more and more into general use every year. The local dealers have already had an unusual run in base burners.

B. W. Kennedy increased his yield of wheat last season 15 bushels per acre by the use of National fertilizer.

A protracted meeting was commenced at Old Salem Church, in this county, last Sunday. The meeting will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Forgy and Lackhardt.

The show windows of the corner store room of M. Frankel & Sons presented a beautiful appearance. The dressing is the work of Mrs. Holland and is very artistic.

The many friends of Dr. Fairleigh will regret to learn that his condition is very critical, and that there is no hope of his recovery. In fact, his death may be expected at anytime.

Douglas Grange Hall, near Bell, will be dedicated next Saturday. A big time is in store for all who attend. A splendid dinner will be served and every body is invited.

Jas. A. Boyd, Kelly Station, says he incised his wheat crop 14 bushels per acre by the use of wheat fertilizer bought of Dr. A. Tandy, yet the croaker says there is no money in farming.

There seems to be a general understanding that the law enacted by the last Legislature in fixing a day for the re-submission of the prohibition question to the courts named the 10th day of March, which will come on Sunday. Such is not the case. A gentleman who lives in Frankfort, at the request of a friend here, went to the Capitol and examined the bill and wrote back that the bill says it shall take place on the "first Saturday in the month of March, 1889."

Mr. P. A. Cushman brought to this office last week, four of the largest apples we have ever seen. They are of the "Kentucky King" variety, and are beauties. The four weighed just 3 pounds and nine ounces. Who can beat it?

The Chautauqua of this city desire to express their gratification at the marked success of Dr. Benson's lecture. As "nothing succeeds like success" they are beginning to feel confident the lecture course will be highly appreciated and patronized by all the intelligent and cultivated people of our city. The Hon. Samuel Phelps Leland, is the learned orator whose valuable services have been secured for next month's lecture.

Card are out announcing the marriage of Mr. Right D. Vance to Miss Anna Beattie, on the 31st of this month at the First Presbyterian Church in Henderson. Bob let me to believe at one time he was going to be related to Hopkinsville, but nevertheless we wish him in advance all the happiness that could possibly be shared by a rising young Democrat.

The Wabash Western R. R. has inaugurated a through Pullman sleeping car service, via Kansas City and the Union Pacific between St. Louis and Denver and Cheyenne, leaving St. Louis daily 8:30 p. m., arriving Denver second morning 7 o'clock, Cheyenne second evening 2:30. Where connection is made with the "Fast Western Flyer" for San Francisco, Los Angeles and Portland, Oregon only one change of cars between St. Louis and those cities. This makes the shortest line and fastest schedule to Pacific Coast.

FOR TICKETS, SLEEPING CAR RESERVATIONS &c., ADDRESS H. H. Fowler, T. P. A., N. W. Cor. 4th and Main Sts., Louisville, Ky.

The Barefoot Of Combinations.

Newton Beer's "Loat in London" at the opera house Thursday night was truly a great production, and the small house that witnessed the play was enthusiastic throughout the performance. Mr. Beer himself is a fine actor, and the specialty features were the best we have seen for a long time.

Herbert McPherson has returned from Hopkinsville and will go to work Monday for E. Nahm & Co. He is polite, courteous, obliging and one of the best salesmen in the city. He knows all the boys and will command a big trade, and Messrs. Nahm & Co. are to be congratulated upon securing his services.—Bowling Green Times.

Isiah Jonas and Arthur Banks, two of the best barbers in the city, have bought out the shop of James Hartgrave opposite the Express office, on Seventh street, and will be glad to have their old customers and the shaving public call on them. These two barbers are as well known that it is useless for us to say anything for them. They are not only very expert with the razor and scissars but always treat gentlemen as they should be treated.

The Barefoot Of Combinations.

True delicacy of flavor with true efficacy of action has been obtained in the famous California Liquid fruit remedy, Syrup of Figs. Its pleasant taste and beneficial effects have rendered it immensely popular. For sale in 50 cents and $1.00 bottles.

Still lower to St. Louis.

The Barefoot Of Combinations.

True delicacy of flavor with true efficacy of action has been obtained in the famous California Liquid fruit remedy, Syrup of Figs. Its pleasant taste and beneficial effects have rendered it immensely popular. For sale in 50 cents and $1.00 bottles.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

Louie, Garnett & Co. insures tobacco barns.

Coal went up two cents on the bushel last week.

W. A. Wilgus' dwelling house is for rent for 1889.

There were services at all the churches last Sunday.

J. F. Pyle is slowly recovering from a month's sickness.

Mrs. A. W. Pyle, who was quite sick last week, is much better.

The Hayes-Davis Company is playing week's engagement in Clarksville.

Thirty-six tickets were sold at this point for the excursion to Evansville last Saturday.

The Court of Claims met yesterday and will be in session to-day, and probably to-morrow.

A couple of negro boys engaged in a fist fight at the depot Saturday, and one of them was badly used up.

Joe W. Cooper has returned from the hospital in Louisville, much improved. He is now in Trigg county.

A centenarian by the name of Millie Wallace was buried last Saturday. She is said to have been 103 years old.

Thos. Ryan, a conductor on one of the local freights, while unloading a grain drill Saturday had one of his hands badly mashed.

Anthracite stoves are coming more and more into general use every year. The local dealers have already had an unusual run in base burners.

B. W. Kennedy increased his yield of wheat last season 15 bushels per acre by the use of National fertilizer.

A protracted meeting was commenced at Old Salem Church, in this county, last Sunday. The meeting will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Forgy and Lackhardt.

The show windows of the corner store room of M. Frankel & Sons presented a beautiful appearance. The dressing is the work of Mrs. Holland and is very artistic.

The many friends of Dr. Fairleigh will regret to learn that his condition is very critical, and that there is no hope of his recovery. In fact, his death may be expected at anytime.

Douglas Grange Hall, near Bell, will be dedicated next Saturday. A big time is in store for all who attend. A splendid dinner will be served and every body is invited.

Jas. A. Boyd, Kelly Station, says he incised his wheat crop 14 bushels per acre by the use of wheat fertilizer bought of Dr. A. Tandy, yet the croaker says there is no money in farming.

There seems to be a general understanding that the law enacted by the last Legislature in fixing a day for the re-submission of the prohibition question to the courts named the 10th day of March, which will come on Sunday. Such is not the case. A gentleman who lives in Frankfort, at the request of a friend here, went to the Capitol and examined the bill and wrote back that the bill says it shall take place on the "first Saturday in the month of March, 1889."

Mr. P. A. Cushman brought to this office last week, four of the largest apples we have ever seen. They are of the "Kentucky King" variety, and are beauties. The four weighed just 3 pounds and nine ounces. Who can beat it?

The Chautauqua of this city desire to express their gratification at the marked success of Dr. Benson's lecture. As "nothing succeeds like success" they are beginning to feel confident the lecture course will be highly appreciated and patronized by all the intelligent and cultivated people of our city. The Hon. Samuel Phelps Leland, is the learned orator whose valuable services have been secured for next month's lecture.

Card are out announcing the marriage of Mr. Right D. Vance to Miss Anna Beattie, on the 31st of this month at the First Presbyterian Church in Henderson. Bob let me to believe at one time he was going to be related to Hopkinsville, but nevertheless we wish him in advance all the happiness that could possibly be shared by a rising young Democrat.

The Wabash Western R. R. has inaugurated a through Pullman sleeping car service, via Kansas City and the Union Pacific between St. Louis and Denver and Cheyenne, leaving St. Louis daily 8:30 p. m., arriving Denver second morning 7 o'clock, Cheyenne second evening 2:30. Where connection is made with the "Fast Western Flyer" for San Francisco, Los Angeles and Portland, Oregon only one change of cars between St. Louis and those cities. This makes the shortest line and fastest schedule to Pacific Coast.

FOR TICKETS, SLEEPING CAR RESERVATIONS &c., ADDRESS H. H. Fowler, T. P. A., N. W. Cor. 4th and Main Sts., Louisville, Ky.

The Barefoot Of Combinations.

Newton Beer's "Loat in London" at the opera house Thursday night was truly a great production, and the small house that witnessed the play was enthusiastic throughout the performance. Mr. Beer himself is a fine actor, and the specialty features were the best we have seen for a long time.

Herbert McPherson has returned from Hopkinsville and will go to work Monday for E. Nahm & Co. He is polite, courteous, obliging and one of the best salesmen in the city. He knows all the boys and will command a big trade, and Messrs. Nahm & Co. are to be congratulated upon securing his services.—Bowling Green Times.

Isiah Jonas and Arthur Banks, two of the best barbers in the city, have bought out the shop of James Hartgrave opposite the Express office, on Seventh street, and will be glad to have their old customers and the shaving public call on them. These two barbers are as well known that it is useless for us to say anything for them. They are not only very expert with the razor and scissars but always treat gentlemen as they should be treated.

The Barefoot Of Combinations.

</

